The Bandman p. 8.

- The first thing I saw when I stepped out of the car was a vast, open landscape.
 The air was cool and fresh, a welcome change from the stuffy interior of the car. I looked around, trying to take in the scene before me. The horizon was flat and distant, and the sky was a pale, hazy blue. There were no buildings, no trees, no signs of civilization. It felt like I had been transported to a remote, uncharted location. The silence was absolute, broken only by the faint hum of the car's engine and the occasional rustle of leaves in the distance. I felt a sense of awe and wonder, as if I had discovered a hidden world.
 The landscape stretched out before me, a vast expanse of open space.
 The horizon line was sharp and clear, separating the land from the sky. The colors were muted and soft, giving the scene a dreamlike quality. I took a deep breath, savoring the fresh air.
 This was a moment of pure, unadorned nature, a reminder of the beauty and scale of the natural world.
